Woman Confesses Bomb Try

Iraqi details attempt to blow herself up in Jordanian hotel

AMMAN, JORDAN | An Iraqi woman confessed on Jordanian state television Sunday that she tried to blow herself up along with her husband during a hotel wedding reception last week, saying that the explosives concealed under her denim dress failed to detonate.

Sajida Mubarak Atrous al-Rishawi, 35, made her statement hours after being arrested by authorities tipped off by an al Qaeda in Iraq claim that a husband-and-wife team participated in Wednesday's bombings at three U.S.-based hotels. The attackers killed 57 other people at the Radisson SAS, Grand Hyatt and Days Inn hotels.

Al-Rishawi's brother was once the right-hand man to Abu Musab al-Zarqawi, the Jordanian leader of al Qaeda in Iraq, said deputy premier Marwan Muasher. The brother, Mubarak Atrous al-Rishawi, was killed in the former terrorist stronghold of Fallujah, Iraq.

Officials believe al-Rishawi may provide significant information about the operations of al-Zarqawi's group, which claimed responsibility for the hotel bombings, Jordan's deadliest terrorist attacks.

Al-Rishawi was shown on state television wearing a white head scarf, a buttoned, body-length dark denim dress, and belts packed with TNT and ball bearings. "My husband detonated [his bomb]," she said. "I tried to explode [my belt] but it wouldn't." JAMAL HALABY (AP)

SCAVENGER HUNTS

Next on the List: A Lawyer

A Fruitport, Mich., man who was participating in a scavenger hunt was arrested after asking to get a photo of a police officer eating a doughnut. Officers Bryan Rypstra and Jon Durell were at the station Nov. 5 when a man wearing a wig and a woman in a frilly pink dress knocked on the door. The two said they were on a scavenger hunt and needed to get a picture of a cop eating a doughnut. Rypstra and Durell agreed to help. Then Durell recognized the man from a flier in the station noting he was wanted on two felony warrants, and he was arrested. (AP)

Mom, You Are Sooo Embarrassing Me Now

A Barnstaple, England, woman took out an ad in a newspaper inviting men to write a 500-word essay on why they should be able to date her daughter, the Press Association reported. Linda Adams headlined the ad "Who wants to date my daughter?" and told single men between the ages of 24 and 30 to send in their picture. Adams said she is hoping to find a good man whom her daughter, a student who lives with her 6-year-old son, could celebrate Christmas with. (EXPRESS)

Pepper Con

Inmates at a Brandon, Fla., jail are trying to spice up their lives by growing hot peppers and making sauce with them. Falkenburg Road Jail residents are the proud makers of Jailhouse Fire hot sauce, made through a horticulture program at the jail. "The food here is kind of institutionalized, so it helps," Allen Boatman, the horticulture program director, said. Boatman and his students spent two years perfecting the recipe, a hybrid of a Caribbean-style hot sauce and a mustard sauce. The first batch of 96 5-ounce bottles went on sale for $3.25 a bottle. # Adviser: Bush Didn't Mislead on Iraq

Hadley says 'we were wrong' on WMD, but didn't manipulate intel

WASHINGTON | While admitting "we were wrong" about Iraq's weapons of mass destruction, President Bush's national security adviser on Sunday rejected assertions that the president manipulated intelligence and misled the American people.

Bush relied on the collective judgment of the intelligence community when he determined that Iraq's Saddam Hussein had weapons of mass destruction, national security adviser Stephen Hadley said.

"Turns out, we were wrong," Hadley told "Late Edition" on CNN. "But I think the point that needs to be emphasized ... allegations now that the president somehow manipulated intelligence, somehow misled the American people, are flat wrong."

Republican lawmakers and other officials who appeared on Sunday news shows echoed Bush's Veterans Day speech in which he defended his decision to invade Iraq.

Bush said Democrats in Congress had the same intelligence about Iraq, and he argued that many now claiming that the information had been manipulated had supported going to war. The president also accused his critics of making false charges and playing politics with the war.

Hadley

Democratic Party chairman Howard Dean rejected the criticism on Sunday and said, "The truth is, the president misled America when he sent us to war."

Appearing on NBC's "Meet the Press," the party chairman disputed Bush's claim that Congress had the same information — the president withheld some intelligence and some caveats about it, Dean said — and that two commissions had found no evidence of pressure being placed on those within the intelligence community.

Contending that the president has not been honest about the size of the deficit as well as the war, Dean said, "This is an administration that has a fundamental problem telling the truth." DOUGLASS K. DANIEL (AP)

Rent Troubles Plague Hurricane Evacuees

WASHINGTON | Only $114 a month stands between Shawn Williams, a Hurricane Katrina evacuee, and eviction from her temporary apartment in suburban Houston.

Williams can afford to pay out of her own pocket and is willing to do so to make up the difference between the $633 voucher she gets in federal aid and the apartment's $747 rent. But a bureaucratic snag prevents her from closing the gap on her own.

Now, after paying the entire rent herself for months because the landlord cannot accept the voucher, Williams says she is running out of money and fears losing her two-bedroom apartment she shares with her disabled husband and teenage son.

The government's disaster relief agency says help is on the way for Williams and other evacuees caught in the frustrating tangle that prevents landlords from accepting more rent money than what Washington is willing to cover.

Federal officials said they could not say how many Katrina victims have been affected. Houston officials said as many as 6,000 additional rental units could be opened to families using federal vouchers if they were allowed to pay part of the rent. LARA JAKES JORDAN (AP)

KINDNESS OF NEIGHBORS: Volunteers help clean up debris in Stratford, Iowa, on Sunday after a tornado hit the town and at least nine others, on Saturday. Woodward and Stratford, where as many as 32 homes were destroyed, were the hardest hit.

Twisters Rip Through Iowa

Two counties bear brunt of storms' fury; 1 person reported dead

WOODWARD, IOWA | Jackie and Bill Seeman sorted through the wreckage of their home Sunday to see what was spared by a tornado that killed one person and damaged dozens of homes.

They were delighted to find a few collectibles, but their car was covered in rubble and their boat had been thrown hundreds of feet away.

"We'll probably stay here, although I'd like to go somewhere without a tornado," Jackie Seeman said as she began crying.

Twisters swept across two counties north and west of Des Moines late Saturday afternoon, ripping up farms in the towns of Stratford and Woodward. At least one person was killed in Stratford.

Dallas County Sheriff Brian Gilbert said no serious injuries were reported in Woodward, but search dogs were being brought in to check the rubble as a precaution.

In Stratford, a town of about 746 people, residents were asked to stay away to give repair crews room to work Sunday, said Chris Segar, a communications supervisor with the Hamilton County sheriff's office.

Tornadoes aren't common this late in the year. Iowa has had just 23 November tornadoes since 1950, according to weather service records.

The conditions were right, though, with unseasonably warm weather in the way of a fast-moving cold front, experts said. Last weekend, another tornado ripped through western Kentucky and Southwest Indiana, killing 22 people. AMY LORENTZEN (AP)

Salaries for University Presidents on the Rise

Curious where those extra tuition dollars are going? One place to look would be the pockets of college presidents. Not all political conservatives are seeing red over ABC's "Commander in Chief," in which Geena Davis plays America's first female president. ## Asian Students Harassed

Nationwide school safety data show rise in bullying, attacks

NEW YORK | Eighteen-year-old Chen Tsu was waiting on a Brooklyn subway platform after school when four high school classmates approached him and demanded cash. He showed them his empty pockets, but they attacked him anyway, taking turns pummeling his face.

He was scared and injured, but hardly surprised.

At his school, Lafayette High in Brooklyn, Chinese immigrant students like him are harassed so routinely that school officials in June agreed to a Department of Justice consent decree to curb alleged "severe and pervasive harassment directed at Asian-American students by their classmates." Since then, the Justice Department credits Lafayette officials with addressing the problem — but the case is far from isolated.

Nationwide, Asian students say

Rita Zeng, 19, stands on the Avenue U subway platform in Brooklyn, N.Y., where she witnessed a racially motivated attack on a fellow Lafayette High School student.

they're often beaten, threatened and called ethnic slurs, and school safety data suggest that the problem may be worsening. Youth advocates say these Asian teens have borne the brunt of ethnic tension as Asian communities expand.

Some lawmakers have responded. The New York City Council, after hearing hours of testimony from Asian youth, last year passed a bill to track bullying and train educators on prevention. Also last year, California Assemblywoman Judy Chu won passage of a new law to allow hate crimes victims more time — up to three years — to file civil suits; the bill was inspired by a 2003 San Francisco incident in which five Asian teens were attacked by a mob. ## Pa. Teen Reportedly Kidnapped at Gunpoint

LITITZ, PA. | A 14-year-old girl was missing after her parents were shot to death in their home Sunday morning, and authorities were searching for her 18-year-old boyfriend, who reportedly abducted her at gunpoint.

Michael and Cathryn Borden, both 50, were found shot to death shortly after 8 a.m., Lititz Police Chief William Seace said.

The couple's 9-year-old son David, the youngest of five children, had fled to a neighbor's house and called 911, Seace said. An older daughter still living at home and two adult sons were also safe, he said.

But Kara Beth Borden, 14, was missing. Police said she was last seen that morning at the family's home about 60 miles west of Philadelphia and was reportedly abducted at gunpoint.

Neighbor Tod Sherman said Mike Borden worked for a printing company, and the children were home-schooled.

Sherman said the family knew the 18-year-old suspect, identified by police as David G. Ludwig, through a home-schooling network.

Stephanie Mannon, 16, said Ludwig and Kara Borden had been seeing each other secretly.

"Their parents didn't approve of them being together" because of the age difference, she said. "It wasn't because he was a shady character, because he wasn't."

Al-Zarqawi Sets Sights Beyond Iraq

Some fear al Qaeda chief may be aiming to expand terror reign

AMMAN, JORDAN | Abu Musab al-Zarqawi is on the move, or at least that's the message he wants to send.

With Wednesday's attacks in his birthplace of Jordan, the al Qaeda in Iraq chief signaled he has the capacity and desire to export his suicide-bombing campaign outside Iraq's borders.

Now, many in the already volatile Middle East worry his stated goals of toppling pro-American Arab rulers, erecting an Islamic caliphate and targeting Israel may be gaining momentum.

His threat is not new to the region, but the three fiery hotel blasts that killed 57 people in one of the Mideast's most secure cities sparked calls for regional and international efforts to fight terror.

Officials in Iraq, where al-Zarqawi's bloody campaign is known all too well, repeated warnings that terrorism will only keep spreading in the Mideast, unless countries work harder to help Iraq end its raging insurgency.

An Iraqi who confessed on Jordanian TV to taking part in the Amman bombings shows her suicide belt on Sunday.

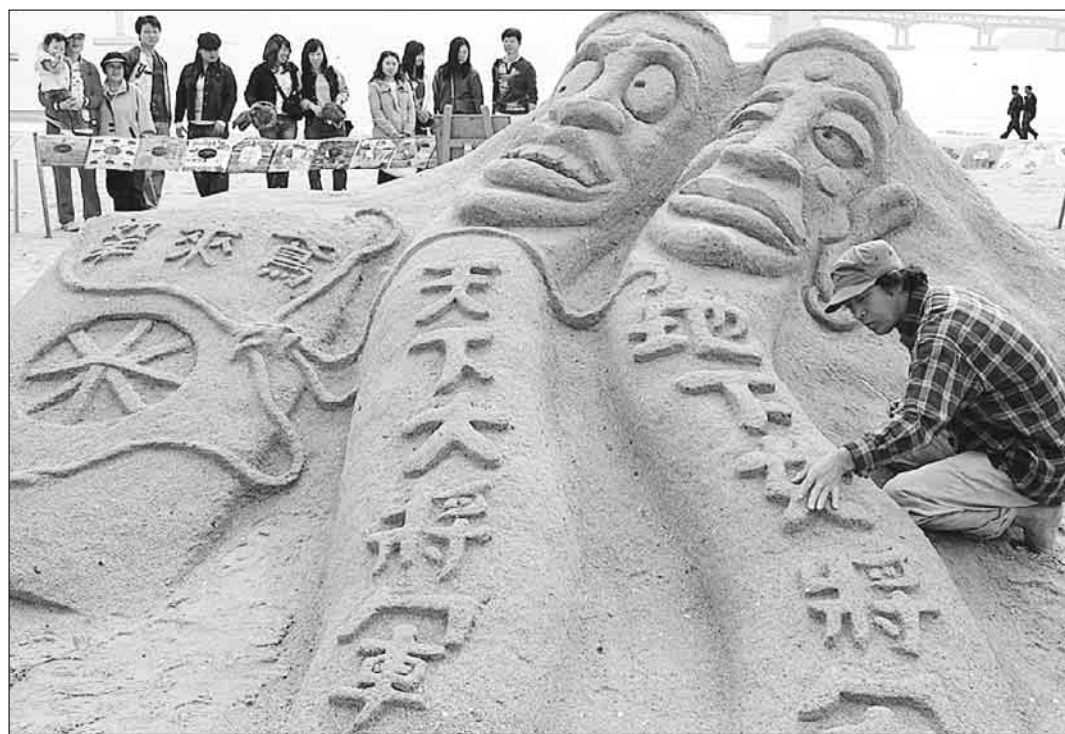

Iraqi Defense Minister Saadoun al-Dulaimi warned Arab states that "if the Iraqi volcano explodes, no neighboring capital will be saved."

The 38-year-old al-Zarqawi holds a special grudge against U.S.-allied Jordan, which has handed down several death sentences against him for terror crimes, such as the 2002 slaying of an American diplomat.

Says Labib Kamhawi, a Jordanian terror analyst: "Al-Zarqawi is gaining momentum and getting more sophisticated."

No Delay in Saddam's Trial Date

Official: Court will appoint new lawyers if defense team boycotts

BAGHDAD, IRAQ | Saddam Hussein's trial will resume on schedule despite the slaying of two defense lawyers and the threat by others to boycott the proceedings over an alleged lack of security, a senior Iraqi judicial official said Sunday.

The court is ready to appoint a new team if defense lawyers fail to appear, added Raid Juhi, one of the judges on the special tribunal.

Saddam

Saddam's team said in a statement earlier in the day that about 1,100 Iraqi lawyers had withdrawn from the defense, arguing that inadequate protection was evident after the killings of two attorneys who were defending co-defendants of the ousted leader.

Saddam's chief Iraqi attorney, Khalil Al-Dulaimi, suggested last week that defense lawyers might not show up for the next session, set for Nov. 28. CHRIS TOMLINSON (AP)

Suspects Stopped Near Nuke Reactor

SYDNEY, AUSTRALIA | Police stopped and questioned three recently arrested Sydney terror suspects near Australia's only nuclear reactor in December last year, according to a police document submitted to a court.

The police fact sheet for eight Sydney terror suspects who faced

They were among 18 terror suspects arrested in Sydney and Melbourne last week and charged with planning a terrorist attack. Police have not identified the likely target.

The document alleges that

According to the fact sheet, when interviewed separately, all three gave different versions of the day's events to police. (AP)

The percentage of French people who do not believe President Jacques Chirac can solve the social problems that fueled nationwide riots, according to a new poll.

WATCHFUL EYE: Amid tightened security measures, a police officer checks the ID of a driver in central Paris on Sunday.

French Violence Lessens

Despite new attacks, police say unrest is waning

PARIS | France's worst rioting since the 1960s seems to be nearing an end, the national police chief said Sunday as fewer cars were torched nationwide and Paris remained calm despite Internet and cell phone messages urging violence in the streets of the capital.

In scattered attacks, youths rammed a burning car into a center for retirees in Provence and pelted police with stones in the heart of Lyon, the country's third biggest city. A firebomb was tossed at a Lyon mosque but did not explode.

The nationwide storm of arson attacks, rioting and other violence, often by young people from impoverished minority communities, has lost steam since the government declared a state of emergency Wednesday.

Youths set fire to 374 parked vehicles before dawn Sunday, compared to 502 the previous night, police said. A week ago, 1,400 cars were incinerated in a single night.

If the downward trend continues, "things could return to normal very quickly," National Police Chief Michel Gaudin said.

The unrest continued for an 18th night Sunday. In Toulouse, rioters rammed a car into a primary school before setting the building ablaze, the regional government said.

On Monday, the Cabinet is to propose a bill allowing an extension of the 12-day state of emergency if needed. ANGELA DOLAND (AP)

Rice Rebukes Iran On Ahmadinejad's Anti-Israeli Speech

JERUSALEM | U.S. Secretary of State Condoleezza Rice gave her strongest rebuke yet on Sunday to the renewed hardline Islamic leadership of Iran, saying that "no civilized nation" can call for the annihilation of another.

Rice was referring to Iranian President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad's remark last month that Israel is a "disgraceful blot" that should be "wiped off the map." Her remarks drew applause from politicians, diplomats and others gathered for a U.S.-Israeli symposium.

Speaking a day after part of her agenda for political openness in the Middle East ran into heavy resistance, Rice also said the Bush administration is under no illusions about the difficulty of spreading democracy in the region.

"We are not naive about the pace, or difficulty, of democratic change," Rice said. "but we know that the longing for democratic change is deep and urgently felt." (AP)

U.S. Tourist Dies In Elephant Attack

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA | An American tourist was trampled to death by an elephant on a South African game farm, police said Sunday.

The victim, identified as 31-year-old Loren Mummy, was on a game drive with two friends from Scotland.

The group, accompanied by a guide, spotted a herd of elephants and decided to approach on foot. Police suspect they got too close to an elephant calf, leading a female elephant to charge them. (AP)

Liberia's 'Iron Lady' Ready to Lead

Johnson-Sirleaf poised to become Africa's first female head of state

MONROVIA, LIBERIA | Liberia's 19th president was overthrown and assassinated. His successor was executed by guerrillas who first cut off his ears. No. 21 won office after igniting a civil war, but fled into exile amid a rebel assault on the capital.

Ellen Johnson-Sirleaf wants to be No. 23.

If her commanding electoral lead is certified, she'll become Africa's first elected female head of state and one of the few in the world.

"It's a big task. I'm aware of the enormity of this," a bespectacled Johnson-Sirleaf said as the vote-counting proceeded.

STARTING ANEW: Liberian presidential candidate Ellen Johnson-Sirleaf will be the war-torn country's next leader if the results of a recent run-off election are certified.

With nearly all the ballots counted, Johnson-Sirleaf is poised for near-certain victory in the Nov. 8 runoff against her soccer star rival, George Weah.

Though international observers say the poll was fair, Weah has waged a formal complaint of fraud and so far refuses to concede. A victor will not be declared until after Weah's complaint is considered at a hearing Wednesday and any other complaints are investigated.

Reaching out to opponents to ensure they don't feel excluded may be the greatest challenge Johnson-Sirleaf faces. She has offered Weah a Cabinet post — perhaps minister of youth and sports.

The scars of war are easy to see in Liberia. Rebuilding will take monumental amounts of time and money.

"All the men who've tried to run this country have failed us," said Edward Clinton of Johnson-Sirleaf's Unity Party. "The time has come to try one experienced woman." TODD PITMAN (AP)

Police Arrest Key Suspect in Deadly New Delhi Blasts

NEW DELHI | Indian police on Sunday claimed a breakthrough in the Oct. 29 triple bombings in New Delhi after arresting an alleged Kashmiri conspirator, and said they have valuable information that could lead to the capture of four others, including the bombers.

Tariq Ahmad Dar, allegedly a key member of the Pakistan-based Lashkar-e-Tayyaba militant group, was arrested in Srinagar on Thursday, Delhi Police chief K. K. Paul told reporters.

Dar himself did not plant the bombs that killed 60 people and injured 200 others, and wasn't in New Delhi at the time, but "the identity of the bombers is more or less confirmed and we are searching for them," Paul said. (AP)

Pr. George's Homicide Rate at 152

'05 killings set to eclipse all-time high in 1991

Prince George's County is approaching a grim milestone with the number of homicides so far this year just two short of the annual record set in 1991.

Since the start of the year, 152 people have been murdered in the county, four more than in all of last year.

"We are facing some challenges in terms of crime," Maj. Vincent Gay, commander of the county's Criminal Investigation Division, told The Washington Post. "We want to see the trend going the other way, but it's not necessarily going to happen overnight."

Gay said police are concentrating their efforts on addressing guns and drugs, since some 87 percent of the county's murders are committed with guns, and 67 percent involve drugs. Police have seized $27 million in illegal drugs and recovered 1,200 guns, he said.

The 1,300-member county police department is in the midst of a hiring push. But it still has 100 fewer officers on duty than it is authorized to have, said Percy Alston, president of Prince George's Fraternal Order of Police Lodge 89.

Some municipalities within the county have taken matters into their own hands by increasing their own police forces. Last week, the cities of Bowie and College Park passed tax increases so they can start police forces of their own, as New Carrollton did in May.

"Slowly, municipalities are taking over police responsibility in the county," said mayor Adam Ortiz of Edmonston, which has five officers on its force. "It is a reflection of the inadequacy of the county to keep citizens safe."

The county's homicide rate has more than doubled since 2000, when 71 people were killed. Since then, the county has seen a population boom that's included poor people moving from D.C. in search of more affordable housing.

Most of the county's new residents are hardworking, law-abiding people, Alston said. But, he said, "along with the good, we are getting the criminals and the dregs of society." (AP)

Police say the so-called cell phone bank robber hasn't been arrested.

ARLINGTON, VA.

Woman Arrested After Bank Heist Not Linked to Others

Arlington County police say they have found no connection between a woman arrested Saturday morning for a bank robbery and the woman who is said to have robbed four other Northern Virginia banks while talking into her cell phone. Saturday's robbery of a Virginia Commerce Bank branch on Lee Highway occurred at around 11:20 a.m. A 20-year-old, Susan Hooban, was arrested without incident and has been charged with one count of robbery. #### D.C. Prostitution Bill Would Impound Vehicles of 'Johns'

D.C. Council members are preparing to vote on new laws that would help police crack down on prostitution in the city. Council member Jack Evans, D-Ward 2, tells WRC-TV that the legislation would let police impound the vehicles of "Johns" caught soliciting undercover officers. The council has already struck down similar legislation, but this version of the law would only let police hold onto the seized cars for a single day. (AP)

ANNAPOLIS, MD. | The Chesapeake Bay Foundation issued its annual report card on the health of the bay Monday, and the results were pretty dismal — a grade of D.

Predatory Fish Thriving In Potomac Watershed

Officials concede that northern snakeheads cannot be stopped

RICHMOND, VA. | The predatory northern snakehead has found a home in the Potomac River, biologists say, and there is little they can do to slow the spread of the Asian import.

The 300 snakeheads caught in a Potomac River tributary last month is evidence enough the toothy fish has bullied its way to the top of the river's food chain.

With the battle to eradicate fish lost, Virginia and Maryland biologists and federal wildlife officials hope the snakehead will find a place in the Potomac's ecosystem without damaging the other species there. Of special concern is its potential to diminish the population of large-mouth bass, a species that fuels a multimillion-dollar tourism and

When Games Grow Up

Microsoft hopes its new Xbox 360 will enjoy a wider appeal

PRODUCTS | When Microsoft Corp. debuted its first Xbox in the fall of 2001, the videogame console was like a teenager — decked out in black, eager to fit in with the hip crowd and embarrassed to be seen with its parent company.

The newest version, Xbox 360, has no intention of being a boring grown-up.

But Redmond, Wash.-based Microsoft says it has learned from some of its youthful mistakes. And after years of distancing the Xbox from its progenitor — maker of computer operating systems and spreadsheet software — Microsoft is now more blatantly touting the console as integral to a long-term plan to dominate the connected home.

When the Xbox 360 debuts in North America Nov. 22, it will still mainly aim to please so-called hardcore gamers — primarily young men who spend hours each week teth-

But over time, the company is hoping that other features will draw in more family members. These include the ability to listen to music, — even tracks from rival Apple Computer Inc.'s iPod — look at family photos, watch DVDs and play electronic puzzle and card games.

Analysts also expect Microsoft to improve on features in its paid Xbox Live online gaming service that let users chat and interact with other subscribers.

The push is not new: Microsoft has been trying for years to extend its Windows brand into the entertainment genre amid a saturated market for regular desktop PCs.

TV Anytime, Anywhere

Favorite programs now on iPods, cell phones and the Web

NEW YORK | "Desperate Housewives" on your iPod. Jay Leno's monologue on your cell phone. Brian Williams delivering the night's news on your computer. And "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation" available whenever you want to watch it — not just Thursday night.

Each of those developments became possible in the past few weeks, part of an extraordinarily tumultuous period in TV.

The autumn of 2005 will doubtless be remembered as the time when all assumptions about the rules of television were thrown into the air and scattered, with no certainty about what happens when they land.

The most shocking event clearly was Apple's deal with The Walt Disney Co. in October to make reruns of "Lost" and "Desperate Housewives" available for downloading to iPods for $1.99. In less than three weeks, Apple said a million videos were sold.

"That's a significant amount of money," said Rob Enderle, an analyst for the Enderle Group. "I honestly believe that's going to change a lot of minds in terms of providing programming for this medium."

The big question is how many people will gravitate toward watching TV on iPods, computers or cell phones when a big-screen television is waiting in front of the living room couch.

That remains unanswered, but it hasn't stopped an explosion of Internet channels or programming offerings this fall — seemingly a new announcement every day.

NBC began offering a same-night replay of "Nightly News" online, the first network news broadcast to take that step. The Food Network starts a Web-only series with chef Dave Lieberman next week. HGTV debuted "My First Place," a series about young people moving into their first homes, on the Web before TV. PBS made NerdTV, a series about high tech pioneers, available exclusively on the Internet.

America Online anticipated only a few hundred applicants for "The Biz," its online-only music talent contest. Instead, it got 9,000. AOL is expected to announce Monday a new initiative to show old TV programming. DAVID BAUDER (AP)

Bucs Run Over the Redskins, 36-35

Alstott's 2-point play sinks Washington in thriller vs. Tampa Bay

Redskins | Somehow, Mike Alstott found a way into the end zone on a gutsy 2-point conversion call by coach Jon Gruden. Alstott's run with 58 seconds remaining Sunday gave the Tampa Bay Buccaneers a stunning 36-35 victory over the Washington Redskins, who blocked a potential game-tying extra point, only to be penalized for being offside on the previous play. Given new life, Gruden elected to try ending a two-game slide in dramatic fashion. Everybody in the stadium knew who would get the ball, but the Redskins (5-4) could not stop the 248-pound fullback, who scored earlier on touchdown runs of 2 and 1 yards. Alstott was hit at the line and appeared stopped before twisting and keeping his legs moving to barely get into the end zone. The conversion stood after the replay official's review. Chris Simms threw for 279 yards and two touchdowns, including a 30-yarder to Edell Shepherd that set up the exciting finish. Clinton Portis ran for 144 yards and snapped a 28-28 tie with an 8-yard run midway through the fourth quarter. Mark Brunell threw for 226 yards and two touchdowns, and Ladell Betts scored on a 94-yard kickoff return for Washington.

Minnesota's Happy Returns

FOOTBALL | The Minnesota Vikings simply could not move the ball, so they got creative — becoming the first team in NFL history to get touchdown returns on a punt, a kickoff and an interception.

Then quarterback Brad Johnson finally put together a drive, setting up Paul Edinger's 48-yard field goal with 10 seconds remaining in Minnesota's improbable 24-21 win Sunday over the New York Giants.

Safety Darren Sharper had three interceptions for the Vikings (4-5), including one he returned for a 92-yard touchdown on the first play of the second quarter.

But the Giants (6-3) drove 67 yards, tying the game with 1:21 left on a 3-yard touchdown run and 2-point conversion run by Tiki Barber.

Johnson then drove the Vikings 42 yards in eight plays, completing four passes in the drive to set up Edinger, who had missed from 40 and 32 yards earlier in the game.

The Vikings had their worst offensive performance of the season with 137 total yards, and were held to six yards in the first half.

Eli Manning finished 23-of-48 for 291 yards and threw a 23-yard touchdown pass to Amani Toomer in the third quarter to give him 10 straight games with a touchdown pass, the longest active streak in the NFL. But he threw four interceptions and had two others that were dropped by Minnesota defenders.

Colts Still Lone Undefeated Team

FOOTBALL | Peyton Manning is back to throwing touchdowns and the Indianapolis Colts are again achieving offensive milestones.

The NFL's two-time MVP carved up the Houston Texans (1-8) defense for 297 yards and three touchdowns Sunday, leading the Colts (9-0) to a 31-17 victory and keeping Indianapolis as the NFL's only unbeaten team for another week.

Manning completed 26 of 35 passes, while Marvin Harrison had seven catches for 108 yards and one TD, making Manning and Harrison the only tandem to top 10,000 career yards. The duo has now hooked up for 755 completions, 10,034 yards and 90 TDs — all NFL records. (AP)

Brady, Patriots Hold Off the Dolphins

FOOTBALL | Bill Belichick beat protégé Nick Saban and didn't even need a running back to do it. Tom Brady and a last-minute defensive stand were enough.

Leading an injury-depleted offense, Brady brought New England from behind twice in the second half, throwing for the game-winning score with 2:16 left to beat Saban's Miami Dolphins 23-16 Sunday.

Gus Frerotte drove the Dolphins 70 yards to the 5 with a minute left, but his fourth-down pass was incomplete with 36 seconds to go.

Two-time defending Super Bowl champion New England (5-4) remained alone atop the AFC East. Miami (3-6) missed a chance to tie for the division lead, instead losing for the fifth time in six games. (AP)

Seattle in Command Of Division

Alexander scores 3 times in Seahawks' 31-16 win over Rams

FOOTBALL | The NFC West race might have ended Sunday.

Seattle's Shaun Alexander romped again, this time for 165 yards on a season-high 33 carries and three touchdowns, and the Seahawks beat the mistake-prone Rams 31-16 at Qwest Field.

The Seahawks (7-2) turned St. Louis' botched fake field goal attempt in the second quarter into a 24-3 scoring run. They have a three-game division lead on second-place St. Louis, which had won two straight to resuscitate its season. Essentially, that is a four-game bulge with seven regular-season games remaining because Seattle has swept St. Louis after losing the previous four to the Rams (4-5).

Seattle has won five straight for the first time since 1999. (AP)

Jaguars Make a Point vs. Ravens

Jacksonville scores 30 for first time in 4 years in rout of Baltimore

RAVENS | The Jacksonville Jaguars went nearly four years without scoring 30 points — an NFL-record streak that players and coaches had grown tired talking about.

They finally ended it Sunday, thanks to Kyle Boller and the Baltimore Ravens.

Greg Jones ran for a career-high 106 yards and a touchdown, Matt Jones had a career-high 117 yards receiving and a score and the Jaguars ended their dubious streak with a 30-3 victory over the slumping Ravens on Sunday.

Jacksonville (6-3) had gone 58 games without scoring at least 30 points. The Jaguars tied Cleveland's NFL record last week against Houston. Cleveland set the mark between 1995 and 2001 (the Browns didn't field a team in 1996-98).

The Jaguars ended the scoring slump with a field goal and a late defensive touchdown — which came off the last of three interceptions thrown by Boller.

Mike Peterson intercepted the pass and returned it 26 yards for a score that put the Jaguars at the 30-point mark for the first time since Dec. 23, 2001 — a 33-3 victory over Minnesota. MARK LONG (AP)

TRIPLE THREAT: USC became the first school in NCAA history with a 3,000-yard passer, Matt Leinhardt, and two 1,000-yard rushers, LenDale White and Reggie Bush, in a single season.

HAVING A BALL: Lance Ball ran for 161 yards on 39 carries in Maryland's 33-30 overtime win over North Carolina on Saturday.

Terrapins 'Boogie' Down

Ball rushes for 100 yards for 2nd straight game

TERPS FOOTBALL | "Boogie" is looking right at home in Maryland's offense.

Lance Ball ran for 161 yards on 39 carries, turning in his second straight 100-yard game to help Maryland beat North Carolina 33-30 in overtime on Saturday.

"I just ran hard," he said. "The coaches told me to get out there, run north and south, find the holes and run through them. The credit goes to the offensive line."

Regardless of how he deflected praise, Ball — a redshirt sophomore — that receiver Jo Jo Walker called

"Boogie" to describe how he runs — provided the bulk of the first-half offense for the Terrapins (5-4, 3-3 Atlantic Coast Conference). And though he slowed after halftime, the 5-foot-9, 225-pound tailback rewarded coach Ralph Friedgen for giving him so many carries.

Ball ran for 111 yards in the first half, including a 1-yard touchdown on a fourth-down option pitch in which he powered over Durrell Mapp at the goal line for a 7-3 lead with 6:51 left in the opening period.

He managed just 50 yards rushing after halftime, but helped set up Dan

Ennis' 28-yard field goal in overtime by running for 7, 4 and 5 yards.

"His balance is what gives him an edge. He's not really caught off balance much. He has good hands and he's somebody that can break it out in the open. Our offensive line did a good job of creating some holes, and Lance did a good job with his reads," said Sam Hollenbach, who threw for 374 yards and three touchdowns.

The performance came at the right time with the Terrapins fighting for bowl eligibility. Maryland now must beat either Boston College at home next week or win at North Carolina State in the season finale to earn its sixth win. AARON BEARD (AP)

Spurrier Leads S. Carolina to Top 25

COLLEGE FOOTBALL | Steve Spurrier has South Carolina in the Top 25.

The Gamecocks made it to No. 19 in The Associated Press media poll Sunday, the first time they have been in the rankings under their new coach.

South Carolina (7-3) ended a 14-game losing streak to Spurrier's old school on Saturday, beating Florida 30-22 in Columbia, S.C.

No. 1 Southern California and No. 2 Texas remained at the top of the poll, as they have been since the preseason.

With Alabama losing to LSU 16-13 in overtime on Saturday, the Trojans and Longhorns are major college football's only unbeaten teams.

Miami was No. 3, followed by LSU and Penn State. Each has one loss.

Notre Dame was No. 6 and Virginia Tech was seventh. The Crimson Tide dropped four spots to No. 8, and Ohio State and Oregon completed the top 10. (AP)

Arenas, Wizards Put NBA On Notice

Domination of league champion Spurs hints at a strong year ahead

WIZARDS | The NBA champs were in town, perhaps a tad weary at the end of a long road trip, and Gilbert Arenas took it right to 'em.

A slice through the lane, drawing a foul. A stop-and-pop floater. A turnaround jumper. A fallaway 3-pointer. Just like that, Arenas scored nine points before the Washington Wizards' game against the San Antonio Spurs was 3 1/2 minutes old, making clear early it would be his night, an NBA season-high 43-point night, to be exact.

The guard's also showing signs early this could be his — and his suddenly defense-dedicated team's — big breakout year. As much as Arenas and Washington coach Eddie Jordan played down the Role Model: To say Gilbert Arenas was on a roll this weekend is an understatement. He scored 32 points Friday vs. Seattle and 43 on Saturday vs. the Spurs.

WIZARDS DEFENSE

Eddie Jordan's team has focused on defense this year, as their stats and record show:

- NBA-leading field goal defense, only allowing 39.1%
- One of two teams in the top 7 in points scored and allowed
- Held defending champion Spurs to 41% shooting and MVP Tim Duncan to 3-18 shooting including 15 straight misses
- First 5-1 start to season since 1989-90

significance of Saturday night's 110-95 victory over the Spurs, it's likely others around the league took note. Arenas "was unstoppable," Spurs coach Gregg Popovich said.

Arenas entered Sunday fourth in the league in scoring, averaging 28.5 points, and he's reached 30 in half of Southeast Division leader Washington's games. He topped the 30-point mark before the end of the third quarter both Friday (a 137-96 defeat of Seattle) and Saturday.

"I was in the groove," Arenas said after making 11 of his first 12 shots against San Antonio. "I'm a scorer, and tonight I had it going, so I kept scoring. But the most important thing was the win."

Washington's other All-Star, forward Antawn Jamison, thinks Arenas doesn't get the recognition he deserves. But Jamison also knows that more respect and accolades will follow more performances — and victories — like Saturday's.

"That was a phenomenal performance against one of the best defensive teams in the league," Jamison said.

Now comes a road test for Washington (5-1), headed to Cleveland, Minnesota and New Jersey this week. As Jordan was quick to remind everyone: "It's early," he said, once, twice, three times. HOWARD FENDRICH (AP)

Orioles Cut Ties With Palmeiro, Sosa

ORIOLES | The Baltimore Orioles have officially announced that they will not be bringing back outfielder Sammy Sosa or first baseman Rafael Palmeiro.

"At this point, we are heading in a different direction," club executive vice president Mike Flanagan said.

Palmeiro and Sosa have indicated that they would like to return to baseball in 2006. But the prospects of either re-joining the Orioles dwindled dramatically after both suffered through terrible seasons.

After hitting 35 or more homers in each year since 1994, Sosa hit just .221 with 14 homers. Palmeiro's season included collecting his 3,000th career hit in July and within weeks being suspended for failing a drug test.

Both players are now unrestricted free agents. (AP)

A MORE INNOCENT TIME? B.D. and Mike meet for the first time in a strip from 1970—already Trudeau was referencing such modern concepts as computer match-ups.

Drawing Attention

Garry Trudeau's 'Doonesbury' strip turns 35

COMICS RELIEF | Not long after the dust settled from the Iraqi explosion that took "Doonesbury" comic strip character B.D.'s left leg last year, the Pentagon was on the phone.

The frequent target of "Doonesbury" creator Garry Trudeau, the Defense Department offered the satirist extensive access to soldiers wounded while fighting in Iraq and the doctors and caregivers trying to put their bodies — and psyches — back together.

"There are so many ways to get it wrong," Trudeau said of portraying the soldiers' struggles accurately. "They figured, correctly, I could use all the help I could get."

It also spoke to the fact that, after 35 years, "Doonesbury" is still considered weighty enough to get the government's attention.

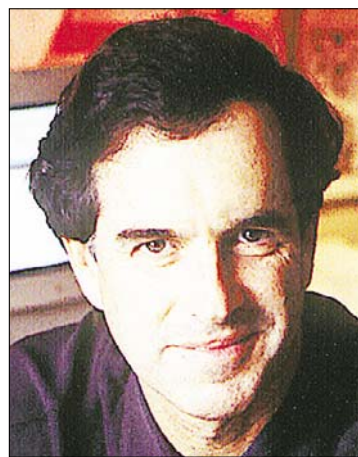

Over the years, the strip — born out of a cartoon that Yale graduate Trudeau, 57, wrote for the college paper — has used humor and biting commentary to address a broad sweep of society, from race relations and AIDS to same-sex marriage and stem cells.

His huge cast of characters have aged along the way. But he's always come back to raw politics. Most recently, he has relentlessly hammered the war and President Bush, who's depicted as an asterisk wearing an increasingly battered Roman helmet.

"Well, it's a humor strip, so my first responsibility has always been to entertain the reader," Trudeau said. "But if, in addition, I can help move readers to thought and judgment about issues that concern me, so much the better."

Those efforts have gotten him in trouble with newspaper editors who have pulled or edited his strips because of salty language, uncomfortable images or controversial subjects.

Trudeau, who describes his politics as "stone dull moderate," said he's supported Republicans in the past but has felt compelled to go after "mindless ideologues like the ones who've had a stranglehold on power the past five years."

Some observers say the war has given "Doonesbury" a new energy, one that they say was largely absent during the 1990s, when American politics and culture didn't deliver the high-stakes issues that experts say satire needs to thrive.

"I think 'Doonesbury' was really of the Vietnam generation and became a voice of the Vietnam generation, and what's interesting to me is that decades later [Trudeau] tapped into that exact same thing with the Iraq war," said Matt Davies, a Pulitzer Prize-winning political cartoonist for The Journal News in Westchester, N.Y. "He's still got it. He's still an angry young man."

A Different View

Adam Goldberg puts his eccentric vision to use in directing

CAREER MOVES | Adam Goldberg is known for digging deep into characters who wear their offbeat neuroses like a badge of honor — consider such roles as the talky nerd in Richard Linklater's "Dazed and Confused" and Chandler's deranged, gimlet-eyed roommate in an inspired multi-episode arc on "Friends."

But he didn't take the starring role in "I Love Your Work," his latest feature directorial effort. Goldberg explains with a refreshing lack of pretension that he wasn't right for the part.

The actor also co-wrote, produced and composed music for the film. (It's his second time at the helm of a feature; his first project was 1998's "Scotch and Milk.") "I Love Your Work" focuses on a disenchanted movie star (Giovanni Ribisi) who becomes obsessed with one of his fans (Joshua Jackson). With fast-paced editing and unusual visual elements, the film explores issues of identity, celebrity and wanting what we can't have.

"I think [the film is] in many ways very universal, which I guess is ironic, because I think some people perceive the movie as this very inside, very kind of specific sort of world," said Goldberg.

"Which it is if you took the film very literally, but the intention was always to use a movie star the same way, I don't know, Shakespeare would use a king. It's kind of just a tragedy. I think movie stars are sort of our modern-day version of what we all aspire to be on some level."

The film is seeing the light of day just as another chapter of Goldberg's career comes to an abrupt end. The actor had a starring role in the new Fox series "Head Cases," which was canceled in September after only two episodes. Goldberg's charismatic performance as off-the-wall lawyer Shultz had all the hallmarks of a star-making turn. The show, however, was stuck in a death-march time slot opposite ABC powerhouse "Lost."

"I got a very bad feeling very early on, and it was real difficult to keep going to work and know that we weren't really being supported. And everyone would say, 'Oh, no, you're being cynical.'"

He also looks for projects that could sneak their way into the mainstream, such as "The Hebrew Hammer," which starred Goldberg as a studly Jewish action hero out to save Hanukkah. The film has amassed a dedicated following. "[That film] is mentioned to me as often as some of the other things that people seem to know me from," he said.

"So [I look at]: 'Is there something in this kind of obscure project which will kind of weasel its way into the consciousness of people?' And certainly with independent films having the kind of [outlets] that they now have to be exposed to people — the exposure that they've been given by festivals like Sundance and that kind of thing make it more of a likelihood than perhaps [in] the old days."

THAT'S RICH: In totally unsurprising DVD news, the home version of "Star Wars: Episode III—Revenge of the Sith" and the LucasArts' video game "Star Wars Battlefront II" have made a $210 million in combined worldwide sales. In one week.

HAPPY FAMILY: Apart from the defection of actress Jessica Biel and the addition of twins, the "7th Heaven" clan has remained intact for 10 wholesome years.

Shows Go to A Better Place

The end of the road for '7th Heaven,' the WB's neo-Waltons

NETWORKS | The Camden family is passing into TV history, with the WB network announcing Friday that "7th Heaven" will end after 10 seasons.

"7th Heaven" was quietly the most popular show in the WB's history, even as the relentlessly hip network trained its spotlight elsewhere. Nineteen of the 20 most-watched shows in the WB's history were "7th Heaven" episodes.

Series creator Brenda Hampton said she anticipated this would be the last season, but it was still difficult to break the news to the cast and crew.

At this point, we're all very much a family," she said. "However, just like the Camden kids, I think we've all grown up and it's simply time to leave home."

No one gave a reason for the cancellation, but production costs tend to increase as shows get older and salaries rise. Contracts for most of the people involved in "7th Heaven" reportedly run out at the end of the season.

The show also proudly proclaims itself the longest-running family drama in TV history, with this final season enabling it to pass "The Waltons" and "Little House on the Prairie" in longevity.

It began in 1996 with actor Stephen Collins portraying the Rev. Eric Camden, the patriarch of a family of five children that expanded to seven with the birth of twins in 1999. Catherine Hicks played his wife, Annie. "7th Heaven" suffered only one cast defection — Jessica Biel, who was the oldest Camden daughter.

"In a million years, I never thought I would play some sort of iconic image of fatherhood. I'm tremendously grateful for it," Collins told the Associated Press earlier this year.

It looks like curtains, too, for Fox's comedy "Arrested Development," which never translated its Emmy Award and critical raves into a broader popularity.

Fox didn't announce the end of the show, but said it wouldn't order a full season's worth of 22 episodes. Barring a miraculous turnaround, that usually means a series is kaput.

Fox also decided against a full season order for "Kitchen Confidential." DAVID BAUDER (AP)

A Cartoon's Sound Effects

The Danger Doom duo pays complex sonic tribute to toons

MUSIC | Rappers are often lambasted by cultural critics for their sometimes cartoonish behavior. But some hip-hoppers actually embrace cartoons, including prolific rapper MF Doom — who has nearly as many aliases for recording as Jennifer Garner has for Sydney Bristow — and producer Danger Mouse, who named himself after a cartoon and co-produced the current album by the conceptual animated "band" Gorillaz.

As Danger Doom, the pair delivers "The Mouse and the Mask" (Epitaph), an ingeniously clever album that showcases their affinity for cartoons and the Cartoon Network's "Adult Swim" roster. The hypnotic-voiced MF Doom constructs 14 lyrically dense adventures that could serve as storylines for wild cartoons of their own.

Danger Mouse's otherworldly production and layered arrangements perfectly accent Doom's wild lyricism. Many of the songs include riffs of dialogue from "Space Ghost" and "Aqua Teen Hunger Force" among other "Swim" shows, making this inside job a noteworthy achievement. SOREN BAKER

Vegas Confidential

What happens in Las Vegas is the subject of a new documentary

“Las Vegas” mixes a chronological history of the city with personal vignettes of contemporary resi-

Tomorrow night follows the city's fall and rise. But it takes a former showgirl to offer a critical note. Once, she says, folks attended shows in tuxedos and furs. "Now," she observes wistfully, "they come in shorts and sneakers." KEVIN MCDONOUGH

A Gift for Shoppers

Holidays

Retailers dangle free shipping and other promos this holiday

Hoping to drum up more sales of handsewn slippers, flannel shirts, sweaters and Christmas wreaths, L.L. Bean has dusted off a promotion it hasn't offered in three years: free shipping for holiday purchases.

And it will have plenty of company as other retailers use generous promotions including free shipping to get holiday shoppers to open their wallets amid a challenging economic environment.

A holiday survey by Shop.org and BizRate Research suggests 79 percent of online retailers will offer free shipping with conditions such as a minimum order.

The promotion resonates with consumers.

"It'll make or break a sale," Jason Carley of Morrisville, N.C., said while shopping with his mother down the street from L.L. Bean's flagship store.

Carley shops for his clothes in stores but he does the rest of his shopping — for DVDs, music and electronics — online.

Shipping incentives will come at a higher cost to retailers as FedEx Corp. and United Parcel Service Inc. have added fuel surcharges, but retailers are pressing forward with them either to drive sales or out of fear of losing customers to competitors.

FREEBIES: With L.L. Bean offering free shipping for all purchases over the holidays, the retailer's warehouse in Freeport, Maine, should be busier than usual.

Other promotions such as sales, free gifts and buy-one-get-one-free are augmenting free shipping as ways to get consumers to shop before their wallets are emptied by high gas prices and the first big heating bills of the season.

Walmart.com won't offer free shipping, but expects to boost online sales by 40 percent to 70 percent this holiday season with exclusive online merchandise such as cashmere sweaters and digital audio players, according to Raul Vazquez, vice president of marketing.

The national average gas price has dropped in recent weeks to $2.35 a gallon on Thursday, but it's still 36 cents higher than a year ago, according to AAA.

Energy costs and disposable income, along with the job market and consumer confidence, play a role in a holiday sales growth forecast that's lower than last year.

The National Retail Federation has projected holiday retail sales will grow 5 percent, to $435.3 billion, compared to 6.7 percent last year. Those sales account for as much as 40 percent of annual sales for some retailers, said spokesman Scott Krugman.

Online retailers are expected to show much bigger gains this holiday season from a year ago, but their growth is slowing as the industry matures.

Jupiter Research is projecting online sales to increase 18 percent to $26 billion in November and December, compared to last year's 22 percent. Forrester Research says online sales will grow 25 percent, compared to last year's 30 percent, to $18 billion.

Against that backdrop, Jupiter Research reports that 56 percent of online shoppers say free shipping will be more important to them than last year.

"That hits my radar screen loud and clear," said Lee Warner of Kennebunk, Maine. She usually does half her shopping online but found herself in Freeport on a recent day to get a coat for her daughter.

As advertised, one of the characters on "Lost" did indeed get whacked this week. I read recently that producers like the effect of characters being killed off, as it increases the drama and suspense of the show. "Increases the drama and suspense" — another way of saying "ratings." Notice how people only get whacked from "Lost" during sweeps periods? I would have more confidence that it was about the "integrity of the show" or whatever jargon it is that writers in Hollywood sling around at cocktail parties, if occasionally someone was killed off in, say, March or April.

Now that "Desperate Housewives" appears to be going the way of the dodo — along with reality TV (we can only hope) and the whole sci-fi on prime time on thing — what can we possibly look forward to in future programming? There must be some hope for good scripted dramas in our future, no? You mean, like "Commander in Chief"? Is that the worst show ever or what? Geena Davis is one annoying Saint POTUS, if you ask me ... I'm hoping that Steven Bochco recognizes what a terrific actor he has in Donald Sutherland and gives him something to do besides twirl his handlebar moustache ominously with his fingers.

Love your descriptions of these actresses. You have perfectly described Marg's behavior when she appears at Q&A sessions during the TV press tour. I always look forward to those sessions.

Even you have to admit that "Stacked" was a good episode this week. Actually, not. And what happened to her [Pamela Sue Anderson's] lips? She looked like Giant Cold Sore.

Public Service, Not Subsidy

You are to be criticized for referring to Amtrak operations as a "subsidy" ("Amtrak's Board Fires Chief Exec," Nov. 10). Amtrak is a public service, as with all other rail services throughout the industrialized world. This public service is akin to police and fire protection, and other civil operations. But the most privileged and greatest subsidy is that of the private automobile — from road maintenance to patrol salaries; from traffic mishaps to environmental degradation — all provided with public funding.

Lashes Worth Batting

Beauty

Big lips give way to extra-long eyelashes as latest style fetish

Scan the celebrity tabloids, flip on daytime TV or even the national news and you'll see them. Amid the amazingly ample breasts, the unlined foreheads and the full lips are sets of long, dense, fluttery eyelashes.

You may cynically, and rightly, assume that implants, Botox and collagen have worked their magic on more than a few of these body parts. Guess what? The lashes are fake, too.

Look closely at Angelina Jolie, Oprah Winfrey, Eva Longoria, Jessica Simpson, Lindsay Lohan and a long list of cable news anchors and you'll spot the telltale signs: thick eyeliner (to hide the false-lash strip edges); lashes that nearly touch the brows (only freaks of nature grow them so long); a spidery pattern of spikes that would make Liza Minnelli proud.

EYES HAVE IT: Eyelash extensions are becoming more popular. Megan Bradley, 17, gets lash-extensions at a California salon.

The old obsession over big lips has given way to a new fetish for big lashes. It started with the troupes of thick-lashed lasses walking the runways for lofty fashion houses. Fashion magazines and celebrity stylists picked up on the notion, and now the rest of us are buying record numbers of "fortified" mascaras and flocking to salons offering the latest beauty fad: eyelash extensions. False eyelashes have lost their tarty image and are stopping traffic at upscale cosmetic counters, such as at Barneys New York and Saks Fifth Avenue.

False eyelashes are the best kept secret in makeup."

MAKEUP ARTIST VINCENT LONGO

And at last, top makeup artists are coming clean about how they make the stars' eyes shine so bright. "False eyelashes are the best-kept secret in makeup," said Vincent Longo. "I've been doing lashes for 22 years, and I don't think false lashes have ever left my kit."

Lash extensions are creating the most buzz. In the painstaking, two-hour process, a technician glues about two dozen individual, artificial lashes onto each eyelid's natural lashes, one by one by one. The service is becoming popular nationwide. It can cost anywhere from $45 in a makeup boutique to $250 in a Beverly Hills hair salon. Some practitioners say the single lashes are an aesthetic improvement over the three-lash, semi-permanent lashes that have been around for 30 years or more and that cost less than $10 at a drugstore.

Unlike mascara or false eyelashes, the new extensions can remain in place for four to six weeks. The investment of time and money makes eyelash extensions an option for women who want round-the-clock, low-maintenance glamour.

Never mind the time and expense of upkeep, with refills at $35 to $100.

"We live and breathe lash extensions," said Sheri Mansur, owner of a salon in Laguna Niguel, Calif., called Luscious Lashes. She charges $175 for a full set; $35 for refills.

Still, mascara remains the top choice for enhancing lashes. There are more mascara varieties than ever — thickening, lengthening, curling, volumizing, nourishing, stretching, push-up, padded, whatever. Mintel's Global New Products Database counted 176 new eyelash enhancement products, mostly mascara, that were released last year, up from just 48 in 2002.

✱ Behind the scenes at Victoria's Secret

GISELE BUNDCHEN set the tone at the Victoria's Secret fashion show this past Wednesday when she stepped onto the runway in a bejeweled "Sexy Splendor Fantasy bra," teeny-tiny red Santa skirt, and above-the-knee red boots.

Unlike designer fashion shows, where models are anonymous hangers for clothes, the lingerie giant encourages models to smile and show a hint of personality. Some, especially Tyra Banks, Naomi Campbell, Heidi Klum and Victoria's Secret's newest "angel" Karolina Kurkova, downright vamped it up for the cameras.

"It's the Super Bowl for super-models," said Ed Razek, chief marketing officer of Victoria's Secret. "We're not selling anything anyone needs, so it has to be something someone wants. It's all about creating desire, creating new 'wants' on a continuing basis."

That's hard to argue, with Banks in a black satin corset with satin lace, crystal beads and sequins, and a velvet lace string bikini. Most people probably could do without huge feather wings, but they go a long way in making a memorable image.

A few pieces of lingerie were quite pretty and potentially wearable by the masses, including a hand-beaded lace princess gown with sequin and crystal "snowflake" trim and a light blue strapless bra with organza ruffles and matching panties.

Seal took the stage and sang as his wife, new mother Klum, appeared on the runway in light-up bra and thong with Swarovski beading. They blew each other a kiss in one of the show's sweetest moments.

Since the show is being televised Dec. 6 on the CBS network, it's likely certain concessions were made to keep the garments from being too revealing. None of this year's outfits were sheer and the bottoms only seemed ridiculously small from the rear view.

This marks the 10th Victoria's Secret runway extravaganza. The company sat out last year after the marketplace seemed particularly sensitive after the Super Bowl flap involving Janet Jackson's bare breast during the half-time show.

Gisele Bundchen wears a perfectly practical underwear ensemble.

In 1999 the show was broadcast online and when 1.5 million visitors tried to log on at once, the Web site crashed.

"I think on the whole what they've done is one of the better stories in apparel marketing. Over the long run, there is a very consistent and totally identifiable look," said Andrew Sacks, president of AgencySacks. "The imagery when you look at it is upbeat. There are a lot of smiles, even a little innocence. They've made lingerie very acceptable for the entirety of the market."

Plans for Federal Employees

Health + Dental + No Referrals = Aetna.

This Open Season, we're adding something extra to the health care equation with our Aetna Open Access® Health Plan that also includes dental. You'll have a choice of thousands of dentists in our network—three times more than last year. And you can see any doctor or specialist in our large physician network without a referral. More choices. More freedom. It all adds up to more reasons than ever to switch to Aetna.

- No referrals
- Dental PPO included
- Copay for covered services
- Out-of-area dependent coverage
